A HAPPY NEW YEAR

The last year has been a prosperous one for this city and county. Nowhere, probably in this condition more apparent than in the growth of the bank. Never before have we had so many depositors; and never before have we had so much money on deposit. To whatever extent your patronage and influence have contributed to the success of our business, we thank you for it. If, as yet, you are not a patron, let this be your invitation to become one.

A Stove that Pays for Itself

That's what the New Method Gas Range does. How? By saving you 25 per cent. of your gas bill.

The New Method Gas Range

Is made of key steel instead of cast iron. This steel being highly polished does away with all friction on the passage of the air and gas through the burner allowing a larger quantity of air to be taken up and mixed properly with the gas than can be in the thick, rough cast iron burners. The more air burned the less gas. Accurate tests made by gas experts in different parts of the country have shown an average of 25 per cent. less consumption of gas from the New Method, than from any other burner.

The steel plates in New Method Ranges are coated on both sides with enamel baked on so hard that it is not affected by heat or will not rust. Steel coated in this way will outwear cast iron and then they're the easiest to clean.

New method ranges are guaranteed for five years. Sold by CHAPTER I.

TWO incidents, widely different in character yet bound together by results, marked the night of Jan. 23. On that night the blackest fog within a four years' memory fell upon certain portions of London and also on that night came the first announcement of the border risings against the Persian government in the province of Khorassan—the announcement that, speculated upon, even smiled at, at the time, assumed such significance in the light of after events.

At 8 o'clock the news spread through the house of commons, but at 9 men in the inner lobbies were gossiping, not so much upon how far Russia, while ostensibly upholding the shah, had pulled the strings by which the insurgents danced, as upon the manner in which the St. George's Gazette, the Tory evening newspaper, had seized upon the incident and shaken it in the faces of the government.

More than once before Lakely, the owner and editor of the St. George's, had stepped outside the decorous circle of tradition and taken a plunge into modern journalism, but tonight he essayed deeper waters than before and under an almost sensational heading declared that in this apparently innocent border rising we had less an outcome of mere racial antagonism than a first faint index of a long cherished Russian scheme, growing to a gradual maturity under the "drift" policy of the present British government.

The effect produced by this pronouncement, if strong, was varied. Members of the opposition saw, or thought they saw, a reflection of it in the quailing unconcern on the ministerial benches, and the government had an uneasy sense that behind the newly kindled interest on the other side of the house lay some mysterious scenting of battle from afar off. But though these impressions ran like electricity through the atmosphere, nothing tangible marked their passage, and the ordinary business of the house proceeded until half past 11, when an adjournment was moved.

The first man to hurry from his place was John Chilcote, member for East Wark. He passed out of the house quickly, with the half furtive quickness that marks a self absorbed man, and as he passed the policeman standing stolidly under the arched doorway of the big courtyard he swerved a little, as if startled out of his thoughts. He realized his swerve almost before it was accomplished and pulled himself together with nervous irritability.

"Foggy night, constable," he said, with elaborate carelessness.

"Foggy night, sir, and thickening up west," responded the man.

"Ah, indeed!" Chilcote's answer was absent. The constable's cheery voice jarred on him, and for the second time he was conscious of senseless irritation. Without a further glance at the man, he slipped out into the courtyard and turned toward the main gate.

At the gateway two cab lamps showed like the eyes of a great cat, and the familiar "Hansom, sir?" came to him indistinctly.

He paused by force of custom and, stepping forward, had almost touched the open door when a new impulse caused him to draw back.

"No," he said hurriedly; "no. I'll walk."

The cabman muttered, lashed his horse and, with a clatter of hoofs and harness, wheeled away, while Chilcote, still with uncertain hastiness, crossed the road in the direction of Whitehall. About the abbey the fog had partially lifted, and in the railed garden that faces the houses of parliament the statues were visible in a spectral way. But Chilcote's glance was unstable and indifferent. He skirted the railings heedlessly and, crossing the road with the speed of long familiarity, gained Whitehall on the left hand side.

There the fog had dropped, and, looking upward toward Trafalgar square, it seemed that the chain of lamps extended little farther than the Horse guards and that beyond lay nothing.

Unconscious of this capricious alternation between darkness and light, Chilcote continued his course. To a close observer the manner of his going had both interest and suggestion, for though he walked on, apparently self engrossed, yet at every dozen steps he started at some sound or some touch, like a man whose nervous system is painfully overstrung.

Maintaining his haste, he went deliberately forward, oblivious of the fact that at each step the curtain of darkness about him became closer, damper, more tangible, that at each second the passerby jostled each other with greater frequency. Then, abruptly, with a sudden realization of what had happened, he stood quite still. Without anticipation or preparation he had walked full into the thickness of the fog—a thickness so dense that, as by an enchanter's wand, the figures of a moment before melted, the street lamps were sucked up into the night.

His first feeling was a sense of panic at the sudden isolation, his second a thrill of nervous apprehension at the oblivion that had allowed him to be so entrapped. The second feeling outweighed the first. He moved forward, then paused again, uncertain of himself. Finally, with the consciousness that inaction was unbearable, he moved on once more, his eyes wide open, one hand thrust out as a protection and guide.

The fog had closed in behind him as heavily as in front, shutting off all possibility of retreat. All about him in the darkness was a confusion of voices—cheerful, dubious, alarmed or angry. Now and then a sleeve brushed his or a hand touched him tentatively. It was a strange moment, a moment of possibilities, to which the crunching wheels, the oaths and laughter from the blocked traffic of the roadway, made a continuous accompaniment.

Keeping well to the left Chilcote still beat on. There was a persistence in his movements that almost amounted to fear—a fear born of solitude filled with innumerable sounds. For a space he groped about him without result, then his fingers touched the cold surface of a shuttered shop front and a thrill of reassurance passed through him. With renewed haste and clinging to his landmark as a blind man might, he started forward with fresh impetus.

For a dozen paces he moved rapidly and unevenly, then the natural result occurred. He collided with a man coming in the opposite direction.

The shock was abrupt. Both men swore simultaneously, then both laughed. The whole thing was casual, but Chilcote was in that state of mind when even the commonplace becomes abnormal. The other man's exclamation, the other man's laugh, struck on his nerves. Coming out of the darkness, they sounded like a repetition of his own.

Nine out of every ten men in London, given the same social position and the same education, might reasonably be expected to express annoyance or amusement in the same manner, possibly in the same tone of voice, and Chilcote remembered this almost at the moment of his nervous jar.

"Beastly fog!" he said aloud. "I'm trying to find Grosvenor square, but the chances seem rather small."

The other laughed again, and again the laugh upset Chilcote. He wondered uncomfortably if he was becoming a prey to illusions. But the stranger spoke before the question had solved itself.

"I'm afraid they are small," he said. "It would be almost hard to find one's way to the devil on a night like this."

Chilcote made a murmur of amusement and drew back against the shop.

"Yes. We can see now where the blind man scores in the matter of salvation. This is almost a repetition of the fog of six years ago. Were you out in that?" It was a habit of his to jump from one sentence to another, a habit that had grown of late.

"No." The stranger had also groped his way to the shop front. "No, I was out of England six years ago."

atrocious fog, as black as this, but more universal. I remember it well. It was the night Lexington made his great sugar speech. Some of us were found on Lambeth bridge at 3 in the morning, having left the house at 12. Chilcote seldom indulged in reminiscences, but this conversation with an unseen companion was more like a soliloquy than a dialogue. He was almost surprised into an exclamation when the other caught up his words.

"Ah! The sugar speech!" he said. "Odd that I should have been looking it up only yesterday. What a magnificent dressing up of a dry subject it was! What a career Lexington promised in those days!"

Chilcote changed his position. "You are interested in the middle down at Westminster?" he asked sarcastically.

"I?" It was the turn of the stranger to draw back a step. "Oh, I read my newspaper with the other 5,000,000, that is all. I am an outsider." His voice sounded curt. The warmth that admiration had brought into it a moment before had frozen abruptly.

"An outsider?" Chilcote repeated. "What an enviable word!"

"Possibly, to those who are well inside the ring. But let us go back to Lexington. What a pinnacle the man reached, and what a drop he had! It has always seemed to me an extraordinary instance of the human leaven running through us all. What was the real cause of his collapse?" he asked suddenly. "Was it drugs or drink? I have often wished to get at the truth."

Again Chilcote changed his attitude. "Is truth ever worth getting at?" he asked irrelevantly.

"In the case of a public man—yes. He exchanges his privacy for the interest of the masses. If he gives the masses the details of his success, why not the details of his failure? But was it drink that sucked him under?"

"No." Chilcote's response came after a pause.

"Drugs?" Again Chilcote hesitated. And at the moment of his indecision a woman brushed past him laughing boisterously.

"Was it drugs?" the stranger went on easily. "I have always had a theory that it was."

"Yes. It was morphia." The answer came before Chilcote had realized it. The woman's laugh at the stranger's quiet persistence had contrived to draw it from him. Instantly he had spoken he looked about him quickly, like one who has for a moment forgotten a necessary vigilance.

There was silence while the stranger thought over the information just given him. Then he spoke again, with a new touch of vehemence.

"So I imagined," he said, "though, on my soul, I never really credited it. To have gained so much and to have thrown it away for a common vice!" He made an exclamation of disgust.

Chilcote gave an unsteady laugh. "You judge hardly," he said.

The other repeated his sound of contempt. "Justly so. No man has the right to squander what another would give his soul for. It lessens the general respect for power."

"You are a believer in power?" The tone was sarcastic, but the sarcasm sounded thin.

"Yes. All power is the outcome of individuality, either past or present. I find no sentiment for the man who plays with it."

The quiet contempt of the tone stung Chilcote.

"Do you imagine that Lexington made no fight?" he asked impulsively. "Can't you picture the man's struggle while the vice that had been slave gradually became master?" He stopped to take breath, and in the cold pause that followed it seemed to him that the other made a murmur of incredulity.

"Perhaps you think of morphia as a pleasure?" he added. "Think of it, instead, as a tyrant that tortures the mind if held to and the body if cast off." Urged by the darkness and the silence of his companion, the rein of his speech had loosened. In that moment he was not Chilcote, the member for East Wark, whose moods and silences were proverbial, but Chilcote the man whose mind craved the relief of speech.

"You talk as the world talks—out of ignorance and self righteousness," he went on. "Before you condemn Lexington you should put yourself in his place!"

"As you do?" the other laughed. Unsuspecting and inoffensive as the laugh was it startled Chilcote. With a sudden alarm he pulled himself up.

"I?" He tried to echo the laugh, but the attempt fell flat. "Oh, I merely speak from—from De Quincey. But I believe this fog is shifting—I really believe it is shifting. Can you oblige me with a light? I had almost forgotten that a man may still smoke though he has been deprived of sight." He spoke fast and disjointedly. He was overwhelmed by the idea that he had let himself go and possessed by the wish to obliterate the consequences. As he talked he fumbled for his cigarette case.

His head was bent as he searched for it nervously. Without looking up he was conscious that the cloud of fog that held him prisoner was lifting, rolling away, closing back again, preparatory to final disappearance. Having found the case, he put a cigarette between his lips and raised his hand at the moment that the stranger drew a match across his box.

For a second each stared blankly at the other's face, suddenly made visible by the lifting of the fog. The match in the stranger's hand burned down till it scorched his finger, and, calling the pain, he turned and ran.

broke off. The circumstance was too novel for ordinary remark.

By one of those rare occurrences, those chances that seem too wild for real life and yet belong to no other sphere, the two faces so strangely hidden and strangely revealed were identical, feature for feature. It seemed to each man that he looked not at the face of another, but at his own face reflected in a flawless looking glass.

Of the two the stranger was the first to regain self possession. Seeing Chilcote's bewilderment, he came to his rescue with brusque tactfulness.

"The position is decidedly odd," he said. "But, after all, why should we be so surprised? Nature can't be eternally original. She must dry up sometimes, and when she gets a good model why shouldn't she use it twice?" He drew back, surveying Chilcote whimsically. "But, pardon me, you are still waiting for that light!"

Chilcote still held the cigarette between his lips. The paper had become dry, and he moistened it as he leaned toward his companion.

"Don't mind me," he said. "I'm rather—rather unstrung tonight, and this thing gave me a jar. To be candid, my imagination took head in the fog, and I got to fancying I was talking to myself."

"And pulled up to find the fancy in some way real?"

"Yes, something like that." Both were silent for a moment. Chilcote pulled hard at his cigarette, then, remembering his obligations, he turned quickly to the other.

"Won't you smoke?" he asked.

The stranger accepted a cigarette from the case held out to him, and as he did so the extraordinary likeness to himself struck Chilcote with added force. Involuntarily he put out his hand and touched the other's arm.

"It's my nerves!" he said in explanation. "They make me want to feel that you are substantial. Nerves play such beastly tricks!" He laughed awkwardly.

The other glanced up. His expression on the moment was slightly surprised slightly contemptuous, but he changed it instantly to conventional interest. "I am afraid I am not an authority on nerves," he said.

But Chilcote was preoccupied. Thoughts had turned into another channel.

"How old are you?" he asked suddenly.

The other did not answer immediately. "My age?" he said at last slowly.

"Oh, I believe I shall be thirty-six tomorrow, to be quite accurate."

Chilcote lifted his head quickly. "Why do you use that tone?" he asked. "I am six months older than you, and I only wish it was six years. Six years would be better."

"The Company OF the People, BY the People, FOR the People."

Review of 1906 and Announcement for 1907

BULLETIN NO. 475.—NEW YORK, DECEMBER 8th, 1906.

To The Field Force.

GENTLEMEN:—

It is our custom to address you each year at the time of our annual Superintendents' Convention. Usually this is held about the middle of January, and the topic of the Bulletin is naturally the Annual Statement of the Company. This year the Superintendents meet in convention the middle of December, and obviously the record of the year is not made up, and it would be premature to set forth the progress of the Company in its business and finances. We shall have something very pleasant to say to you before we close about what you have accomplished; but our immediate object is to tell you about our plans for next year.

Industrial Department.

You have known from addresses, both oral and written, what our ambition has been for years in the Industrial part of our business. You will bear us witness that our treatment of the policyholders has been one of progressive liberality ever since the present administration of the Company began. The very first year of its incumbency Paid-up policies—therefore unknown to Industrial insurance in this country—were announced, and every year since then something has been done for Industrial policyholders beyond any promise made in the policies. Bulletin No. 195 set forth these concessions and bounties up to its date and since then the successive years have been marked by progressive gifts and benefits offered to policyholders; and this year the Company has been disbursing the enormous sum of about two millions of dollars in voluntary dividends upon non-participating Industrial policies; bringing the total amount of unpromised dividends in twelve years to about ten millions of dollars to Industrial policyholders in the form of dividends on premiums, dividends on death claims and increases of benefits upon existing policies.

We have been enabled to accomplish this work all these years by steady improvements in business methods, by steady extensions of business territory, by steady additions to insurance in force, by watchfulness in writing and taking care of business, resulting in a decreasing death rate, decreasing lapse rate and decreasing expense rate. These improvements we have announced to you from year to year; but perhaps from this very fact—their gradual, steady progressiveness—you have failed to grasp their full significance. Yet year by year we have told you our aim—to reduce expenses, to improve the death rate, to better the policies, to distribute the surplus, so that each year a larger proportionate amount could be returned to policyholders and a smaller proportionate amount used in expenses.

Within the last few years our disbursements for death claims have been so continuously and markedly less in proportion to income and our improvements in ratio of expenses shown so steady an improvement, that we thought the time had come to make a scientific survey, so to speak, of the technical features of the business. We have made investigations into our mortality and drawn off into various periods our experience of mortality. The mortality tables upon which our present tables are founded were taken from the experience of 1890-1894. A comparison of this with tables taken from the experience of other periods has shown a steady improvement in mortality. In the case of children the result is really startling. Take, for instance, age two next birthday. Our present table shows 49.3 deaths per thousand; a table 1896-1905 shows but 36.9; age three the figures are respectively 72 and 24.3; age five 16 and 9.8; age ten 5.5 and 3.9 and this improvement runs through the infantile table. As to adults there is also a marked improvement.

These facts convince us that the time has come to construct new tables of benefits founded upon our experience of 1896-1905; and we are confirmed in our conviction by the fact that a table drawn from the years 1901-1905 shows a better experience than that of the full decade. And it seems to us just to base these tables upon the experience of white lives; and to give benefits based upon the improvement which we feel certain is permanent. How great this improvement is we illustrate by a few figures comparing the table upon which our present benefits are based with a table of white lives for the past ten years. Deaths per thousand: age two next birthday 49.3 reduced to 24.7; age three 32 to 22.5; age four 21.5 to 13.2; age five 16 to 9.5; age ten 5.5 to 3.4; age twenty 10.5 to 7.1; age thirty 15.7 to 11.1; age forty 19.3 to 14.3. The other element besides mortality involved in a table of benefits is of course the expense. As you know, our ratio of expense to premium income has been falling for some years; this year the reduction has been phenomenal and will reach, we think, by the end of the year, three per cent. This alone means a saving of nearly one and a half millions of dollars! We shall show a lower ratio of expense for 1906 than has been experienced by any Industrial company in the world.

One other element goes into the construction of tables of benefits; and that is the maturity of the policies. When we made up our present table we were convinced that the public was enamoured of endowments. Our Industrial business has been issued for ten years, as you know, mainly upon Endowment tables—Increasing Life and Endowment policies and Twenty-year Endowments forming a very large proportion. In some years over 90 per cent. of our total business. One disadvantage of this table has been that it largely increased the reserve. Our children's Increasing Life and Endowment policies have been endowments payable after periods of 47 years and upwards according to age at issue. Compared with the Whole Life tables issued by other companies these have made necessary the accumulation of an increase of many millions of dollars in reserve. Unthinking persons come to the conclusion that this piles up the wealth of the Company forgetting that along with the increase of assets runs the increase of liabilities; and that the wealth of a company consists in its surplus; and completely overlooking the remarkable fact that we have deliberately kept down our surplus to about ten per cent. of our assets by annual distributions of the excess of surplus earned to the policyholders who contributed to it. Public opinion has changed and now cares more for death benefits than endowments. We are in business to please the public. We have a good deal of evidence that Ordinary Life and Limited Payment Life contracts are thought preferable to Endowments. We have resolved therefore to discontinue our Increasing Life and Endowment policies, which were designed to meet the public demand formerly existing, and which were, we believe, the first tables ever really scientifically constructed for Industrial policies. Our new Industrial policies will therefore be Whole Life contracts. But we think that as to these there are signs of a belief on the part of the public that payment of premiums ought to cease with old age. It is hard for people to see what to any mathematician is self-evident, that in life insurance the companies are enabled to pay the policies in full on lives of those who die soon after insurance only by the receipt of premiums from those who live out and beyond their expectations; and that the hardship upon those who live long is only the contribution to the unfortunate which is the essential basis of life insurance. However, it is possible of course to make tables for limited payments, and the problem is therefore to fix an age that shall not be so young as to raise the premiums or (what is the same in Industrial insurance where the unit is the premium and not the amount of insurance) to reduce the benefits unduly; and on the other hand to fix the age not so old that the benefits of the limits of payment of premium shall be lost. We have fixed age 75 as the limit of payment of premiums because at that age we are enabled to only slightly reduce the benefits during life and because we have not received many complaints of the necessity of paying premiums up to that age. And to the occasional complaint that "people never live to such old age," we may answer that in 1906 we shall have voluntarily, as matter of grace, paid about 2,700 claims as Endowments on policies issued as Whole Life "on persons reaching age 80 after paying premiums for 15 years or over."

Constructing a table of benefits upon these four principles—Whole Life instead of Endowments; our recent mortality experience instead of our old; a loading proportioned to our reduced expenses; and the payment of premiums ceasing after age 75—we shall put forth for 1907 new tables in the Industrial department which are better than any company has heretofore issued and better than we have ever before this felt it safe to issue.

The most striking change is in the Infantile table, because there we substitute Life tables with payment of premiums limited to age 75 for our comparatively short Increasing Endowment tables now in use; and are therefore enabled to pay in benefits what we have been compelled to hold as reserve liability upon the endowment features.

Our new infantile tables will pay nearly as much in death benefits for a weekly premium of five cents as we have heretofore paid for a weekly premium of ten cents. It is of course understood that the law fixes a maximum of benefits payable upon children and this we cannot exceed. We have therefore increased the benefits at the later ages for persistence. Thus at age two at entry the benefit in case of death at age nine is $173, while the benefit at age three at entry, dying at age nine is $169, and the benefit at age four at entry, dying at age nine is $165, and so on. This is a recognition of the additional years for which premiums have been paid by those entering at earlier ages when death occurs at the same age. It follows from this large increase of benefits for 4½ cents that hereafter no policy will be issued under the Infantile tables for a total premium of more than five cents. And to meet a desire for less insurance, especially in large families, we have a table with proportionate benefits for a weekly premium of three cents.

Our Adult tables show an increase of benefits for the same premium based strictly upon our tables of mortality. At age ten the increase is 12-13 per cent over our present Life table and nearly 18 per cent. over our Increasing Life and Endowment table. At age 20 the increase is over nine per cent. and over 23 per cent. respectively; at age 30 the increase is nearly six per cent. and nearly 20 per cent., respectively; at age 40 the increase is two per cent. and over 13 per cent. respectively, and so on. And in comparing these tables with our present Whole Life table (and with those of most of the other Industrial companies) it must not be forgotten that these old tables provide for payment of premiums during the whole of life, while under our new tables payment of premiums ceases at age 75.

We have increased the immediate benefits under all of these policies in accordance with the rule we made retroactive this year, to half-benefits during the first six months and full benefits thereafter.

We have introduced into all of these policies new features in way of surrender values. Paid-up policies will be granted after three years at the option of the holder; and cash surrenders will be paid after ten years. The policies will be in new and attractive forms, with three pages instead of two, in order to set forth all of the concessions, making the rights of the policyholders so plain that any one will be able to tell what he is entitled to. And the whole contract will be expressed in the policy, doing away entirely with the necessity of a copy of the application, using the form in this respect for all policies under $300.

Ordinary Department.

One of the most striking results of the Armstrong Investigation was the adoption of a provision restricting expenses for the first year of the life of the policy. And what is most interesting as well as complimentary to the Metropolitan is the fact, which appeared in the newspaper discussion at the time of the adoption of the report and bills, that this restriction by law was justified by the experience of this Company in the matter of expense as shown by an analysis of its annual reports. It is true that this Company kept its expenses almost within the limit prescribed by the new statute. But the statute is a penal one and we cannot run any risk of over-running the limit of expense. This necessitates a reduction of commissions, but the reduction will be very much less than that made necessary by the companies issuing participating policies. This Company will not issue after this year any other than non-participating policies. In fact, in the true sense of the term we have not issued any other for nearly fifteen years; for, as we have often explained, the Intermediate and Special Class policies were based upon stock or non-participating loading and the dividends promised. If earned, were expected to be derived from the mortality. These policies were entirely novel and we had little experience to guide us. The Intermediate policies were based upon our Industrial risks which could afford to pay annual instead of weekly premiums; and the mortality of such a class could not be foretold. The Special Class policies were for sub-standard risks as to which the mortality could not be accurately predicted. What we undertook to do was to pay back to the policyholders the gain from such improvement in mortality over the expected as should be actually experienced. As participating policies are based upon a higher or so-called mutual loading out of which dividends are expected to be earned we claim that our Intermediate and Special Class policies based upon a stock loading were in principle non-participating. All of our other policies in the Ordinary Department were by their terms non-participating. The law has justified us in the principles we adopted fifteen years ago, and today the Armstrong laws and the similar ones prepared for other States are a vindication of the Metropolitan principles in which you have been trained. We have now an experience of Intermediate and Special Class risks which enable us to prepare non-participating tables. The tables of premiums as to these policies have heretofore been completely readjusted. We think you will find them most attractive.

We realize that we shall henceforth have more competition in non-participating policies. Other companies have announced their purpose to restrict their issue to this form. We have therefore thought it in your interest as well as our own and in the interest of the public, which is superior to both, to use a part of the reduction of commission to effect some reduction of premium. New tables have been prepared which we think will be attractive to our customers and which therefore will be profitable to you. In adjusting these commissions we have thought it only just to restore to the Superintendents an interest in them which we were compelled to withdraw a few years ago and which you remember the Vice-President promised at the time to restore when we should be able to arrange it. And we have also recognized the good work of Assistant Superintendents by giving them an interest in the work of their agents. We realize that the duties of Superintendents and Assistants include the instruction and training of Industrial agents in the work of the Ordinary Department. We want all of our agents to be all-around insurance men. Our Superintendents and Assistants have imposed upon them as a duty the supervision, the constant help and encouragement and the education of their agents. We have made it an interest as well as a duty.

Our new policies will be found most attractive in form and even more attractive in substance. They contain all of the advantages and concessions which we can afford to give and which the public have a right to expect. The surrender values will be found to be generous and take the optional forms of extended insurance, paid-up insurance and cash. They are standard forms of the New York Department, the work of experts which has legislative approval. They are as plain, to the understanding as they can be made. We have discontinued many plans as unnecessary. We shall issue Ordinary Life, Limited Payment, Endowment and Term plans; and we have applied for permission and hope to issue in addition three plans which the public have stamped with their approval—namely, the Optional Life or Endowment, under a new name, the Modified Endowment with Life Option; the Guaranteed Dividend, also under a new and more descriptive name, the Guaranteed Increased Endowment; and the Reduced Premium Life under its new name, Life with Reduced Premium after 20 Years.

Gentlemen, we are entitled to say that the Armstrong Investigation was a vindication of the methods and practices of the Metropolitan Life. The Armstrong laws are in many respects a distinct recognition of the work we have done together these many years. See that you appreciate this fact to the utmost. Show that you do by making the year 1907 an unexampled year for the issue of more policies, for larger insurance, for greater gain, for less lapses and not-taken, at a less expense, at a less expense, at a greater return to policyholders than you have ever done. Live up to your blessings! Show that you appreciate the reward which the Legislature has conferred upon your good work of the past! Make 1907 the greatest because the best year in the Company's history!

This Year, 1906.

You have started well. Last year, the year of the investigation, you did the largest business we had ever done. The first part of this year the paralysis which seemed, unreasonably and unnecessarily, to have fallen upon the business in general appeared to have affected even you—even more unreasonably and unnecessarily. Finding this to be the fact, the Vice-President appealed to you in personal conferences with the Superintendents in little groups all over the country; pointed out to you the facts and conclusions of the Armstrong inquiry and the results as embodied in legislation; showed you the essential approval we had received in our work in both departments, and asked you to respond to a call this for the remainder of the year by making the best record you had ever made. This was in May and June. It would be most ungrateful not to make this public and general acknowledgment of your response to the appeal, and on behalf of the Vice-President I give to you his personal thanks and add our official acknowledgments. This year is not yet ended and we cannot therefore tell the whole story. But for the months July to November, inclusive, compared with the same months of previous years:

You made the largest amount of Industrial increase which the Company ever made, except in 1894 and 1905.

The agents wrote the largest amount of Industrial business, average per man, of any of the last ten years.

The average increase per man was larger than for any of the past ten years.

The ratio of lapses was the third lowest for ten years past. The number of transferred accounts was the lowest for eight years, notwithstanding the larger force of men with which we started and the larger reduction in the force we have made this year.

The collections were the best in the history of the Company! The death claims reached the lowest ratio for the last 25 years—notwithstanding the increased average age of the policyholders.

The special salary to agents averaged the largest amount in the last ten years; and yet we saved $100,000 in the total compared with last year.

The saving in total cost in these items alone, medical fees (because of a reduction in number of applications), Assistants' salaries and special salary, was at the rate of a million dollars a year.

We may add that the Pacific Coast kept up with the procession by the remarkable feat of covering for the year the enormous lapse caused by the earthquake and is certain to close the year with a handsome increase.

In the Ordinary Department September about equaled September of last year, while October and November largely exceeded the corresponding months of last year, and December promises to be a record breaker!

And taking the last six months for comparison—June to November, inclusive—you wrote more Ordinary than ever was written by the Company in the corresponding months and exceeded 1905 by over six millions and a half; and this it must be remembered by more than 3,000 less men!

We are proud of this record and we are grateful to you for your generous response. We cannot say more than to wish for you and yours the happiest and most prosperous year of your lives in 1907!

Very sincerely yours,

JOHN R. HEGEMAN,

PRESIDENT.

Railroader and a Woman Kill Themselves in County Jail.

Elmira, N. Y., Dec. 27—Frank Delaney, a railroad man, succeeded in a bold attempt to end his life and the life of a woman who occupied a cell in the Elmira county jail. The woman was Bessie Wells, awaiting sentence for abducting a young girl and harboring her for immoral purposes.

Delaney possessed a power of attorney for the woman and when he called at the jail and stated that he wished to consult her regarding the signing of important papers there was no objection on the part of the warden, who sent a guard along with him.

The guard stood close by while the man and woman were conferring together, when suddenly Delaney drew from his pocket a bottle of carbolic acid and passed it through the bars. The woman seized it and swallowed the contents. Instantly Delaney pressed a second bottle to his own lips. The guard sprang upon him, but the man fought fiercely for a moment and then collapsed. He died before a physician could be called. When the door of the cell was unlocked the woman lay dying on the floor. She died within a short time.

THE NEW SERIAL.

The opening chapter is printed in today's Age of the best story that ever been run serially in any newspaper, bar none—"The Masquerader."
While it contains a psychological problem that is a stunner, yet at the same time the story is told with such a breathless interest of narration at one is held spell bound and can hardly wait for the chapters to come. It is the kind of a book that you want to take a peep at the last chapter. It is a novel, pure and simple, and was written by a woman.
Do not fail to read today's installment. "The Masquerader" has been one of the most popular books in the Coshockton library.

FROM THE FRYING PAN.

Ben Dickerson gets a new trial, his attorneys declare they will insist on change of venue inasmuch as they claim he cannot get a fair trial in Coshockton county, because of the fact that the trial was so fully printed in the newspapers.

Their hypothesis be true then they cannot, for the very same reason, the case to be tried in Zanesville, for the Zanesville newspapers had reporters every day at the trial and while not printing quite as comprehensive reports as The Age, yet they did print every day columns of news concerning the trial of Ben Dickerson.

The same token the court cannot order the trial to be held at Newark has two newspapers and both of them had reporters every day at the trial and gave just as full and good accounts of the proceedings as the Zanesville papers.

A fair and impartial trial cannot be had in the Coshockton court when neither can a fair and impartial trial be had at either Zane-sville or Newark.

It may be difficult to find, yet we believe that a jury can be obtained in Coshockton county, if Dickerson is to have a new trial, that can be a fair and honest hearing.

Awful Agony of Piles

Positively Relieved by The Pyramid Pile Cure.

A TRIAL PACKAGE MAILED FREE
There is no reason—surely no good reason—why any man or woman should continue to suffer with piles when a reputable company of druggists have placed in every high-grade drug store a trial package of the Wonderful Pyramid Pile Cure at a price within the reach of the poorest. They have done more. They offer to relieve the sufferer temporarily and start him well on the way to recovery, by giving to any piles patient who sends his name and address, a free trial package of the Wonderful Pyramid Pile Cure in a plain sealed wrapper. There are enough of the curative elements in this trial package to greatly reduce the swelling of the affected part to heal much of the soreness and ulceration. After the sample is gone your druggist will supply you with a box of the Pyramids for 50 cents.

Read Mrs. Bond's letter, which tells how she suffered and was relieved, if not positively cured, after using one 50 cent box.

"I have tried your pile cure and find them all you recommend them. I am very thankful to you for ever putting them within my reach for I have had one box and I have not used all of them yet, and I feel like a new woman today, and I tell everybody about them. When I started them I could not walk across the floor, but now I can do my work all right. My work was a burden to me before I started them, but I can tell you that I can work much better now. You can rely on me I will tell everybody about Pyramid Pile Cure. Yours sincerely, Mrs. J. Bond, Toronto, Canada 23 Pears Ave."

There is positively no risk or danger with the Pyramid Pile Cure, for there is nothing but curatives in the preparation. They are suppositories which placed in the affected part, act as a soothing ointment working upon the infected and ulcerous tissues, giving them new life and stimulating a stronger circulation of the blood.

By the use of the Pyramid Pile Cure the patient is cured at home without losing a day's work, no matter what his occupation. The cure may be accomplished in absolute privacy. We use no names for advertising purposes without the voluntary consent of the patient.

The Pyramid Pile Cure is quick, permanent and painless. Do not delay, but send your name and address today, and we will furnish you at once with the free trial package Pyramid Drug Co., 73 Pyramid Bldg., Marshall, Mich.

The 50 cent size packages are for sale at all druggists.

NEW YORK FASHIONS

Pattern for a Girl's Russian Blouse Suit Designed by May Mantion—No. 5480.

There is no dress that more perfectly suits the needs of the school than the one made with the Russian blouse. It is exceedingly stylish in effect; it is very generally becoming; at the same time it allows perfectly free movements and is simple, as all girls' dresses should be. This one includes some novel features and is trimmed with banding at the edge of the front as well as on the sleeves. In this instance royal blue serge is trimmed with a pretty banding and collar and cuffs of white, but while blue is well liked, it is not obligatory, and other plain colors and checks will be greatly used throughout the coming season. The suit consists of the skirt, the body lining and the blouse. The body lining is smoothly fitted, and the straight skirt is gathered and joined thereto. The blouse is entirely by separate and consists of fronts and back. It is closed at the left side and is finished with a hem on the lower edge, in which is inserted elastic that regulates the size. The sleeves are moderately full and can be finished either with turnover cuffs or the bands. The quantity of material required for a girl of 10 years is 5½ yards 27, 3½ yards 36 or 3 yards 44 inches wide, with three-eighths of a yard for collar and cuffs and 5 yards of banding. The pattern, 5480, is cut in sizes for girls of 6, 8, 10 and 12 years of age.

DIRECTIONS FOR ORDERING

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Barton of Pipe street entertained the Musical club Christmas night the following persons being present: Mr. and Mrs. Vincent, Mr. and Mrs. Goodman and son, Mr. and Mrs. Stuckum and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Shannon and two children, Mr. and Mrs. Clark and daughter, Mr. Miller, Miss Stewart of Columbus, Mr. and Mrs. Lee Jennings of West Lafayette, Mr. George Clark, Mr. Starkey, Mr. Klinger, Miss Hazel Aroschalt. After a musical program had been enjoyed an oyster supper was served by the hostess.

Wedded Here.

Says the Zanesville Times-Recorder: Miss Della I. Ogle and Mr. Louis E. Ballinger surprised even their most intimate friends by quietly slipping out of the city on Monday to Coshocton, where they were wedded at high noon on Christmas day at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Dunlap by the Rev. Mr. Robertson. Mrs. Dunlap is a sister of the groom. The Dunlap home was beautifully decorated for the event. The folding doors leading from the reception hall to the parlor were arched with holly and suspended from this was a pure white wedding veil. Under this the marriage vows were uttered. The bride and groom were attended by Mrs. Myrtle Watson, a sister of the bride, and Mr. Chas. Dunlap. Immediately after the ceremony the guests were ushered into the dining room where a wedding dinner was served. Mrs. Ballinger is daughter of Mrs. Louis Ogle of Price street and has many friends who will hasten to extend congratulations. Mr. Ballinger is a son of Mr. and Mrs. James Ballinger of Mohabala avenue and is in the employ of the A. E. Title Co. Mr. and Mrs. Ballinger will reside in this city.

The Historical Club.

The holiday meeting of the Historical club was held Wednesday at the library and the study of English history continued in three very interesting papers. Mrs. W. J. Adams had the first paper the subject assigned her being "The Later Plantagenets," the age was designated as one of progress the reign of one of these kings, Edward I being the time when the people were first given a voice in the government by the institution of the House of Commons; it was un-

Food For The Growing Child

Whole Grain Preparations Declared of Greatest Value in Development of Body and Mind.

"The growing child especially needs those elements that are found in whole grain preparations," says the writer of a recent magazine article on "The Best Foods for Growing Children."

Malta-Vita is the perfect whole wheat food, rich in every nutritive element demanded by the body of the child and just as healthful and strengthening for the child's parents and older sisters and brothers. Being a pure grain product—simply the whole of the best white wheat and a little salt, mixed with pure barley malt extract—Malta-Vita supplies the body with all those good elements which make bone, blood, muscle and brain and bring perfect health.

The malt extract is added after the wheat has been thoroughly cooked and steamed and converts the starch of the wheat into maltose, or malt sugar, which is highly nutritious and easily assimilated, even by very weak stomachs. Physicians recommend maltose for its strength-giving qualities and Malta-Vita is rich in it. After being treated with the malt extract, the wheat, rolled into little water flakes, goes to the ovens, where it is baked crisp and brown, delicious beyond description. All grocers, now 10 cents.

der the rule of this same Edward that the persecution of the Jews was begun; under the next Plantagenet king, Edward II Parliament was first regularly summoned but the ruler himself was a weak man much under the domination of his favorites and his wife Isabella who was a woman of remarkable cruelty and is known as the "she-wolf" of France; she conspired against her husband and finally succeeded in having him imprisoned and murdered. During the reign of Edward III the growth in commerce was first noticeable the king's wife Philippa encouraging it by urging the importation of wool and its subsequent manufacture into fabrics. It was during this reign that the crimson sack of wool was first used as a seat for the chief justice of England, a custom which has come down to this day. Edward the Black Prince is another famous son of the Plantagenets whose rusty helmet and dented shield are still hanging in Canterbury cathedral and last of the line comes Richard III one of the weakest of the English sovereigns who made himself thoroughly unpopular with the people by the institution of the poll tax which affected not only men but women and children as well.

Mrs. Agnew wrote of "The Growth of English Universities," these universities she said are the outgrowth of the ancient monastic schools whose only object was to prepare men for the priesthood; Oxford and Cambridge are both results of this merging of monastic schools and scholastic ambitions, Cambridge being made up of seventeen colleges and dating back to the twelfth century; Oxford is even older having been established during the reign of Alfred and being fairly steeped in classic lore. For seven centuries these two seats of learning controlled all university education but in 1900 London University was established and now there are similar institutions with particularly fine technical schools at Birmingham, Leeds, Liverpool, Manchester and Sheffield.

The story of Elinor and Fair Rosamund was given by Mrs. D. F. Denman, the story which is at once history, legend and tradition; Elinor of Aquitaine was first married to Louis of France; with him she went on one of the crusades but was divorced because His Majesty thought her unfaithful; she was given back her dowry of Aquitaine which was a rich heritage and caused her to be sought in marriage by the youthful Henry of Anjou who afterward became Henry II of England. Henry was but nineteen at the time of the marriage, the bride many years older, and the result of it all was that, in course of time the king fell in love with the beautiful Joan Clifford whom he called his Rosa Mundi; he built a labyrinth at Woodstock, where he took this fair Rosamund to live and the jealous Elinor finding the thread which divulged his infatuation went in and murdered her rival. Rosamund was buried in the nunnery of Godstow and John raised a monument in her honor which a latter monarch compelled the nuns to remove. At the conclusion of this paper the club adjourned to meet again January seventh.

Happy Wedding.

Joseph Passmore son of Philip Passmore and Miss Vera Veisel, daughter of Adam Veisel, two very well known and very highly respected young people, both coming from excellent families, west of Roscoe, were united in marriage by Rev. C. C. Erwin, Thursday afternoon at 1:30 o'clock at his home on East Main street in this city. They will go to housekeeping at once in the William Dawson property recently purchased by the groom in the same neighborhood where both have lived. They may live long and prosper is the hearty wish of all their friends.

Blemishes, pimples, eruptions, rashes, treated by Satin skin cream soon disappear.

Outlaws Drop a Marshal.

Tulsa, I. T., Dec. 27.—In a running fight near Dawson, a mining camp three miles from here, Deputy United States Marshal Strickland was shot and left for dead by two desperate outlaws. The bandits were later captured and lodged in jail. Strickland is in a local hospital in a critical condition.

Treasures Found in Our American Forests

That our American forests abound in plants which possess the most valuable medicinal virtues is abundantly attested by scores of the most eminent medical writers and teachers of this and other countries. Even the untutored Indians had discovered the usefulness of many native plants before the advent of the white race. This information, imparted freely to the whites, led the latter to continue investigations until to-day we have a rich assortment of most valuable American medicinal roots.

Dr. Pierce, of Buffalo, N. Y., believes that our American forests abound in medicinal roots for the cure of most obstinate and fatal diseases if we would properly investigate them, and, in confirmation of this conviction, he points with pride to the most marvelous cures effected by his "Golden Medical Discovery," which has proven itself to be the most efficient stomach tonic, liver invigorator, heart tonic and regulator, and blood cleanser known to medical science. Dyspepsia, or indigestion, torpid liver, functional and even valvular and other affections of the heart yield to its curative action.

The reason why "Golden Medical Discovery" cures these and many other affections, is clearly shown in a little book of extracts from the standard medical works which is mailed free to any address by Dr. R. V. Pierce, of Buffalo, N. Y., to all sending request for the same.

To aid in healing old sores, or ulcers, work, exacting social duties, the too frequent bearing of children, or other causes, will find in Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription, the most potent, invigorating, restorative strength-giver ever devised for their special benefit. Nursing mothers will find it especially valuable in sustaining their strength and promoting an abundant nourishment for the child. Expectant mothers too will find it a priceless boon to prepare the system for baby's coming and rendering the ordeal comparatively painless. It can do no harm in any state, or condition of the female system.

The "All-Healing Salve" is a superior dressing for all open, running, or suppurating, Sores or Ulcers. For healing open wounds, cuts and scratches it is unsurpassed.

If your medicine dealer does not have the "All-Healing Salve" in stock mail 50 cents in postage stamps to Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y., and you will receive it by return post.

In treating all open sores, or ulcers, boils, carbuncles and other swellings, it is important that Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery be taken persistently to purify the blood and thereby remove the cause of the trouble. It is in the blood that the great battle of health has to be fought. The ulcer and the sore are simply the scarlet flowers of disease, with roots running down into the blood. These roots must be eradicated or the disease will break out afresh. "Golden Medical Discovery" cleanses the blood of all foul and poisonous accumulations, pushes out the dead and waste matter, and thus purifies the entire life current. Disease in the flesh must die out when it is no longer fed by foul blood.

"Golden Medical Discovery" effectively cures disease in the flesh by curing its cause in the blood.

Not less marvelous, in the unparalleled cures it is constantly making of woman's many peculiar affections, weakness and distressing derangements, is Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription, as is amply attested by thousands of unalloyed testimonials contributed by grateful patients who have been cured by it of catarrhal pelvic drains, many diseases. Cure the cause and you cure the disease. Easy to take as candy.

Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets cure constipation. Constipation is the cause of many diseases. Cure the cause and you cure the disease. Easy to take as candy.

he said. "Where are your ambitions?"

"They don't exist."

"Don't exist? Yet you voice your country? I concluded that much in the fog."

Chilcote laughed sarcastically.

"When one has voiced one's country for six years one gets hoarse. It's a natural consequence."

The other smiled. "Ah, discontent!"

he said. "The modern canker. But we must both be getting under way. Good night. Shall we shake hands—to prove that we are genuinely material?"

Chilcote had been standing unusually still, following the stranger's words, caught by his self reliance and impressed by his personality. Now, as he ceased to speak, he moved quickly forward, impelled by a nervous curiosity.

"Why should we just hail each other and pass—like the proverbial ships?" he said impulsively. "If nature was careless enough to let the reproduction meet the original she must abide the consequences."

The other laughed, but his laugh was short. "Oh, I don't know. Our roads lie differently. You would get nothing out of me, and I?" He stopped and again laughed shortly. "No," he said. "I'd be content to pass if I were you. The unsuccessful man is seldom a profitable study. Shall we say good night?"

He took Chilcote's hand for an instant, then, crossing the footpath, he passed into the roadway toward the Strand.

It was done in a moment, but with his going a sense of loss fell upon Chilcote. He stood for a space, newly conscious of unfamiliar faces and unfamiliar voices in the stream of passers-by. Then, suddenly mastered by an impulse, he wheeled rapidly and darted after the tall, lean figure so ridiculously like his own.

Halfway across Trafalgar square he overtook the stranger. He had paused on one of the small stone islands that break the current of traffic and was waiting for an opportunity to cross the street. In the glare of light from the lamp above his head Chilcote saw for the first time that, under a remarkable countenance of refinement, the stranger was personality of the map. With a certain embarrassed haste he stepped forward and touched his arm.

"Look here," he said as the other turned quietly. "I have followed you to exchange cards. It can't injure either of us and I—I wish to know my other self." He laughed nervously as he drew out his card case.

The stranger watched him in silence. There was the same faint contempt, but also there was a certain interest in his glance as it passed from the fingers holding the card case to the pale face with the straight, straight mouth and level eyebrows drawn low over the gray eyes.

When the last card was held out to him Chilcote, without remark, slipped it into his pocket.

Chilcote looked at him eagerly. "Now the exchange," he said.

For a second the stranger did not respond. Then, almost unexpectedly, he smiled.

"After all, if it amuses you," he said, and, reaching in his waistcoat pocket, he drew out the required card.

"It will be very, very interesting," he added. "The name of a friend never spills anything." With an other smile, partly amused, partly ironical, he stepped from the little island and disappeared into the throng of traffic.

Chilcote stood for an instant gazing at the point where he had vanished; then, turning to the lamp, he lifted the card and read the name it bore, "Mr. John Loder, 13 Clifford's Inn."

PUD CARR IS WORKING TWIN CITIES

(Uhrichsville Chronicle)
Pud Carr, who is promoting the Central Ohio baseball league, took a run up from Gnadenbutten, yesterday, where he is spending his honeymoon with his wife's parents.

"The league," said Pud this morning to The Chronicle, "looks better every day."

He was in New Philadelphia Saturday and after looking over the situation and talking to a few fans, thinks there is a good chance of interesting the proper people in the county seat.

"With New Philadelphia and Canal Dover in as one," Pud says, "some of that old time baseball feeling would appear in this section of the country."

"Then the circuit would be much better assembled, which is always the main feature in a small league. Long jumps have sent many a small league to the bad."

Mr. Rice Manager Speck of the P. H. A. O. and Pud held a conference and talked over the twin city outlook last evening. Speck is very much enthused.

ANSWERS EVERY CALL.

Coshocton People Have Found That This is True.

A cold, a strain, a sudden wrench. A little cause may hurt the kidneys. Spells of backache often follow. Or some irregularity of the urine. A certain remedy for such attacks. A medicine that answers every call, is Doan's Kidney Pills, a true specific.

Many Coshocton people rely on it. Here is Coshocton proof.
Mrs. A. J. Shepler, photographer, 131 Chestnut street, Coshocton, Ohio, says: "Doan's Kidney Pills cured my husband of kidney disease. Before he used them, he suffered from a disordered condition of the kidneys, the secretions being very dark and of an offensive odor. His back ached and pained him all the time and he felt miserable. After trying many remedies without obtaining relief, he appealed to Doan's Kidney Pills, procuring a box at Siegrist & Williams' drug store. They helped him so much that he continued the treatment? He is now enjoying excellent health and attributes it to the wonderful properties of Doan's Kidney Pills."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo New York, sole agents for the United States.

Remember the name—Doan's—and take no other.

Second Team to Play Friday

The first and second teams will play polo at the rink Friday night, and a good game is expected. The second team has some good polo players, and it is possible that the team will be strengthened with one or two of the first team. The game will be called at 8 o'clock promptly, and admission will be 10 cents.

Coshocton's polo team will play in Utica Saturday night. Newark plays Denison at Uhrichsville Friday night.

Claim French Made Reply.

Rome, Dec. 27.—In spite of the denials of the French government that it has made any reply regarding the vatican's protest to the powers on the subject of the expulsion from France of Mgr. Montagnini, until recently secretary of the papal nunciature at Paris, the vatican has been positively informed that M. Pinchon, the minister for foreign affairs for France, has made verbal statements in answer to this protest to several diplomatic representatives at Paris, who telegraphed the minister's communication to their respective governments.

Launch Lost.

New York, Dec. 27.—Police launch No. 6, a small naphtha boat with three patrolmen aboard, is missing, and it is feared that the little craft and its crew are lost. The launch left Canasie police station for Sheepshead bay. She was last seen off Sheepshead battling with the ice floes and apparently trying to make open water. Later the launch was lost sight of and has neither been seen nor heard of since.

Fell Five Hundred Feet.

Bessemer, Mich., Dec. 27.—Elias Lehtonen and Joseph Bardessono were instantly killed in the Colby iron mine here by falling 500 feet to the bottom of the shaft when a "skip" on which they were riding to the surface was dumped by striking on a projecting beam. Two other miners riding in the skip saved their lives by catching hold of the rope and clinging to it.

Prisoner Cremated.

Birmingham, Ala., Dec. 27.—The city prison at Jacksonville, in Calhoun county, was burned, and Richard Walker, the only inmate, cremated. Walker was arrested for beating his brother and his wife, whom he ran from home. It is not known who set fire to the jail.

Cashier Surrenders.

Sedan, Kan., Dec. 27.—Otto D. Stalard, former cashier of the People's National bank of Sedan, who disappeared on Sept. 20 last owing the bank close to $20,000, arrived home and surrendered. He was accompanied by Mrs. Stalard.

Porter Resigns as Manager

Manager Porter of the high school basketball team, has resigned his managership, and the position has been filled by Harry Parrish. Mr. Parrish telephone New Philadelphia this morning trying to arrange a game for Friday night here, but they had an engagement. A date was made for Friday night, January 11 to be played in that city, and a return game will be arranged later.

Canton high school will play here next Friday night. They won from our team by 31 to 16 in Canton, but the boys are confident of winning the game here. Which ever side wins, it will be one of the fastest basketball games ever played in Coshocton.

Female Weakness

"Last Fall," writes Mrs. S. C. Hey, of Tun-nelton, W. Va., "I was going down by inches, from female disease, with great pain. After taking Cardui, Oh! My! How I was benefited! I am not well yet, but am so much better that I will keep on taking Wine of Cardui till I am perfectly cured."

Despite the envious attacks of jealous enemies and rivals, Cardui still holds supreme position today [as in the past 70 years] for the relief and cure of female diseases. It stops pain, tones up the organs, regulates the functions, and aids in the replacement of a misplaced organ.

Destroyed by Quake. Santiago, Chile, Dec. 27.—Half of the town of Arica, in the province of Tacna, has been destroyed by earthquake, and other towns in the neighborhood have suffered more or less severely. The seaport of Iquique, 120 miles south of Arica, was not damaged. With the recollection of the August disaster fresh in their minds, the people in the earthquake zone are greatly alarmed.

Both Found Dead. Jacksonville, Fla., Dec. 27.—The dead bodies of George Patterson, a cab driver, and Alice Clark, boarding house keeper, were found in different rooms of the boarding house. The indications were either suicide or murder. No cause can be ascertained. The bodies were taken to the morgue.

M. E. CHURCH ELECTION IS SOON TO BE HELD

The annual election of officers of the M. E. church falls on the first Wednesday in January which comes one week from last night. J. F. Meek who has served so efficiently as superintendent, will retire on account of ill health and it is understood D. D. Boyd may take the office. William Smith who has been first assistant, sails early in January for England, where he will assist Edgar Elliott, who is general agent for the Meek company in that country, and there will therefore be a vacancy to fill.

When the crispy mornings come, you will be delighted if you have Mrs. Austin's Pancakes for breakfast.

Death of Cousin of W. A. Himebaugh

The Oshkosh, Wis., newspaper gives an account of the death of John W. Himebaugh, a cousin of W. A. Himebaugh, of this city. He died very suddenly in a hotel at Philadelphia, where he had been on business, Monday, December 3 and was buried at Oshkosh the following Saturday. He was vice president of the Paline Lumber Co. and owned the Ohio Door & Sash Co., of Cleveland, Ohio. He was a millionaire several times over. Diabetes was the cause of his death.

Shot Himself.

New York, Dec. 27.—Benjamin Brown, financial manager of the American and United States Express companies, shot and probably fatally wounded himself while in an office of the two companies in the Williamsburg section of Brooklyn. Mr. Brown, whose duty it is to inspect the Brooklyn offices, sent the manager of the Williamsburg office away on an errand, seated himself in the window and fired a shot through his lungs. A second shot which he fired went wild. The shooting was witnessed by a number of persons, who were passing by.

HUNTING FOR A BUYER— for anything whatever—is a pretty hard task if you have to do it in person; and a pretty easy one if you do it "by want ad."

Selling things, finding things, or finding people "by accident" is a poor way—and a slow way—to get along. Want advertising affords a SYSTEM FOR DOING SUCH THINGS.

Tell your wants to No. 182 and The Age will carry them before all Coshocton.

Templars From Six Cities At Local Session

Coshocton Commandary Knights Templar conferred the Order of the Temple on five candidates and the Order of Malta on seven candidates at the meeting held Wednesday evening. After the degree work was over there was a banquet with A. H. Thomson as toast master, responses being made by L. P. Schaus, D. C. Winegarner, Eminent Commander Worth, Frank Beggs, F. C. Murphy, of Newark; H. S. Scott of Adams Mills who is a member of the Zanesville Commandary, C. D. Brooke, E. S. Lee and L. E. Baughman of the local commandary.

Speeches were also made by W. H. Chilcote, A. R. Pitzer, H. C. Bostwick and E. H. Franklin of Newark. Thirty members of the Newark Commandary were present, one from Zanesville, one from Cambridge, one from Alexandria, Va. and one from Urbansville.

The following visiting Knights were here: J. L. Worth, A. L. Beggs, W. H. Chilcote, A. R. Pitzer, H. H. Harris, D. C. Winegarner, L. P. Schaus, W. W. Davis, F. C. Murphy, John W. Jerome Prepared to Act.

New York, Dec. 27.—District Attorney Jerome has written a letter to D. Cady Herrick of counsel for the Mutual Life Policyholders' association, saying he is now willing to take up the matter concerning charges against President Peabody of the Mutual Life Insurance company of coercion in connection with the election of trustees of that company. These charges were brought to the attention of the district attorney some time ago by Mr. Herrick. Mr. Jerome refused to act on them at the time on the ground that he did not want his office "used to influence the election of trustees in the Mutual Life."

Was a Bluff.

Billings, Mont., Dec. 27.—Several days ago the manager of the Billings sugar factory received a threatening letter that unless the sugar factory gave up $25,000 the plant would be dynamited and blown into atoms. The letter directed that the sugar company place a man representing the company on a Burlington train with a red lantern who was to drop the money when he saw a man with another red lantern beside the track. The sheriff put a posse on the train, including the sugar company's representative, taking with them a red lantern and a package, but found no sign indicating that the highwaymen had carried out his part of the schedule.

Happy Echo of Sunshine Service

A happy aftermath of the Sunshine Service which was held at the Presbyterian church Friday evening came Thursday morning in the form of a note which The Age is asked to publish. It is from Mrs. Jacob Retzler whose husband met his death in such a tragic manner a few years ago and thanks Mrs. L. P. Gallagher and the girls of her Sunday school class for the bountiful Christmas dinner they provided for the family.

It goes to the root of disease, invigorates, strengthens, exhilarates its life-producing properties are not contained in any other known remedy. Hollister's Rocky Mountain Tea. Tea or Tablets, 35 cents

Below Zero.

St. Paul, Minn., Dec. 27.—Below zero temperatures prevail in North Dakota, part of Montana and Canada. The local weather bureau reports 8 degrees below at Williston, 4 below at Devil's Lake, N. D., and 2 below at Winnipeg, Man., and 4 below at Minnedosa. A special to the Pioneer Press from Imperial, N. D., says that Frank Warnick, a homesteader, was found frozen to death near his shack, three miles north of that town. Warnick was engaged in the printing business on the Pacific coast eight years ago.

K. P.'s Took Five New Ones
